1. About 3,000 young and efficient railway workers from the North China Railway have been transferred to railways in South, Central, and East China. A large number of them are employed on the Canton-Hengyang-Hankow Railroad. Soldiers and customs inspectors at the Mo-yang (112-35, 26-56) railway station are from North China. Of the 40 to 50 customs and public security personnel in the Canton railway station, about 80 to 90 percent are from North China and Manchuria.
2. In Hunan Province all officials in the magistrate and county offices are from Manchuria. They are young and are considered well-trained.
3. Most of the minor Communist administrative officials in Hanking and Shanghai are former members of the Communist Southern Activities Corps (Han Hsia Kung Tso T'uan 南下工作團). * Members of this corps were recruited in North China.

25X1A * Comment. This organization was established prior to the Communist take-over of Southeast China to train personnel for Communist administrative and cultural work in Southeast China. It has not been previously reported by this title.
